MELTING AND REFINING DEPARTMENT,

Philadelphia, 18th July —, 1885.

Sir,

With regret I have to Report to you a case of insubordination last evening. At the last pouring of Ingots, two of the men, Beatty & Counsel having injured their hands in work, being yet young in the business, could not attend to their places. My foreman, M^r Garrigues, ordered Chapman to take a place to finish out the casting, but he flatly refused to do so, declaring that he would not obey. One other, Aspinall, proved to be absent, having told some one that he must make a train, but not having asked, or even mentioned to the foreman, that he intended going. (It was 8^h 20' when he left.) The former is an absolute destruction of Authority; the latter highly to be re-proved even in a good man. Very respectfully,

Hon. D. M. Fox. } J. C. Booth

Sir,

With regret I have to Report to you a case of insubordination last evening. At the last pouring of Ingots, two of the men, Beatty & Counsel having injured their hands in work, being yet young in the business, could not attend to their places. My foreman, Mr. Garrigues, ordered Chapman to take a place to finish out the casting, but he flatly refused to do so, declaring that he would not obey. One other, Aspinall, proved to be absent, having told some one that he must make a train, but not having asked, or even mentioned to the foreman, that he intended going. (It was 8h 20' when he left.) The former is an absolute destruction of Authority; the latter highly to be reprovved even in a good man.

Very respectfully,
